

Taoufiq Sakhkhane is Associate Professor at the College of Languages, Letters and Arts at Ibn Tofail University, Kenitra, Morocco. He is the author of Spivak and Postcolonialism: Exploring Allegations of Textuality (Palgrave, 2012.) His forthcoming essay with Critical Survey Journal (Fall 2022) is entitled: “Harold Bloom and William Shakespeare: The Saints of Repetition and the Towers of Babel.” As a translator of texts from French and English into Arabic, he has translated more than ten books: Toni Morrison’s Playing in the Dark, Paul Bowles’ Without Stopping, Sylvia Plath’s The Bell Jar, Patrick Modiano’s L’horizon, L’herbe de nuits, Pour que tu ne te perdes pas dans le quartier, Carole Widmaier’s Fin de la Philosophie Politique: Hannah Arendt contre Leo Strauss, Youssef Amine El Alami: Meme pas Mort, and Victor Bulmer-Thomas’s An Empire in Retreat: The Past, the Present and the Future of the United States. E-mail: taoufiq.sakhkhane@uit.ac.ma