

Dr. Rania Mohamed Rafik Abdel Fattah Khalil is an associate professor, she teaches in the Department of English Language and Literature and is the Acting Vice Dean for Research and Postgraduate Studies in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities. She is a member of the University Research Committee and a member of the University Ethics Committee.

Dr. Khalil is also a member of the University Senate and the Director of the Research Centre for Irish Studies (RCIS) at the British University in Egypt. She has a strong track record of obtaining international grants and conducting research consultancies in the region in collaboration with the UNHCR and the British Council UK. Her research is published in both national and international high impact journals. Dr. Khalil has recently been the guest editor for Studi Irlandesi: A Journal of Irish Studies Volume 13, July 2023 and is a peer reviewer for a number of international journals indexed in Scopus and Web of Science / Thomson Reuters. She is currently focusing her efforts on the capacity building of early and mid-career researchers in Egypt and the region as well as the development of their research knowledge and skills including raising awareness around ethics in research and publication.